ABOUT THE RACE PROBLEM.

By Mrs. H. B. Grinnell.

Ex-Governor Northen, of Georgia as recently made an important statement upon the race problem. He is an authority upon the subject and his statement is in direct opposition to that of Mr. Graves, who would get rid of the problem not alone by segregating the colored people, but by deporting them. Governor Northen has been among the colored race all his life and he is free to confess he does not want to live where there are none. Of course, no true southern person does, and we would trust them more confidently than the mongrel population of self-announced people who want them deported. The South could not do so if it did. They almost exclusively furnish the farm labor in the South and their departure would paralyze its agricultural industry. We are glad the moderate, thoughtful conservative of the South are beginning to be heard upon this question as well as the radicals. Only a few days ago Prof. Edwin Mims, of Trinity College, N. C., a southern-born man, whose father was a distinguished Confederate soldier, made a statement that the North erred in accepting as the opinion of the whole South the opinions of some radicals. While the conservatives, both black and white, do not believe in social equality or in universal suffrage, they do believe in "legal justice and limited suffrage impartially enforced." We do know that it was these conservatives who defeated the division of the school fund, who denounced peonage, and who have extended all their influence to secure legislation against lynching. Such men as Northen and Mims in the end will do much towards the settlement of the race problem and their work will be more potent than that of the Tillmans, Dixons, Graves and bandamans. They will be the leaven to leaven the whole lump, while the radicals, will make more attention perhaps, but it is effervescent.

Harvey Thresher Again.

Harvey Thresher, of Cannelton, formerly of Tobinsport, was arrested and fined in Evansville, Ind., on Wednesday for an attempt to caress a bevy of laundresses. Thresher had partaken freely of the brown leverage that smelleth of the hop, and after having being invited to leave a bakery made his way towards the White Swan laundry, which he entered. He sauntered into the operating room, and before the score of girls there employed was aware of his presence, he had his arms around the comeliest one of the bunch, and was hugging her with a bruin-like hug. Screams brought assistance, and with eyes blackened to an ebony hue the offender was given a ride in a patrol wagon. He is serving eleven days in the county jail.

Western Recorder Vies With the News in Complimenting Glendean's Good People.

To show that the good people of Glendean are fully deserving of the compliments bestowed upon them and their new Baptist church by the News we quote the following article, by Dr. Harvey, in the Western Recorder, of Louisville. The News, in its last two issues, said every good word it could in announcing the dedication of the church and then in describing it. The Recorder vies with the News as follows: "Last Sunday will long be remembered in Glendean, Breckenridge county. The beautiful church building erected by the members of Goshen church was dedicated. The debt was $1,080—large balance for a building that cost from $3,300 to $3,500. The money was raised and an elegant dinner was enjoyed in the church yard. There are no nicer people and better behaved than the people of Goshen neighborhood, and for culture and refinement they are hard to equal. The order of exercises were as follows: Elder Duncan led in prayer; the writer preached and took the collection; the pastor made the dedicatory prayer. After an elegant dinner, enjoyed by about 1,000 people, Pastor J. F. Vines preached his farewell sermon, having resigned some time ago the care of Cloverport and Goshen churches to accept call of Central church, Chattanooga, Tenn. This sad parting with the universally beloved pastor was most tender, and many tears were shed. Bro. Vines is an able minister of the New Testament and a model pastor. Our prayers follow him to his new field.

"The building committee was composed of R. T. Dempster, M. D., chairman, W. C. Moorman, J. T. F. Owen, R. G. Robertson and Jas. A. Moorman.

"The largest contributions were made by Bro. W. J. Deane, Jr., who gave $300, and his mother and brother Charlie gave $200 more. Then came R. G. Robertson and son C. V. W. C. Moorman, Frank Dean and Dr. Dempster and others."

STRANGE STORIES FROM

TRUTHFUL PELLVILLE MEN.

By M. Mosely.

Something new in the propagation of grasses has been discovered by W. W. Spencer, a man noted for his piety and veracity. He says after his wheat was cut he passed through the stubble and, on seeing it appeared green, he made an examination and found that a straw of timothy was growing out of each wheat stubble.

The same man says he cut off a turtle's head on Thursday and the following Sunday he and another man passed through his field looking at the crops, when one of them poked a stick at the severed head, which at once snapped and caught the stick in its jaws as viciously as if its body, which was fast decaying, had been attached.

Mike Stephens, Jr., one of our best young farmers and all-around good fellows, says cut worms make grasshoppers and asks anyone to box a few up and see for themselves.

Amos Skinner, one among the best men near here, says he covered the vine some distance from the hill and when it took root at that place he severed it between that and the hill and raised a fine seedless watermelon. He proposes to prove this.

Speaking of Cloverport, Uncle Solomon Obichain, a very pious, good man, who is eighty-two years old, said: "Wesley Dunn and we boys used to go to Clover when old Colonel Murray sold goods there, to do our trading. After supper we would get out in town and pass ourselves off as police. We have met many a country fellow and arrested him, scaring him near to death by telling him he had violated the town laws by being out so late and it was our duty to take him in."

Uncle Sol, as he is called by every one, says: "Them was funny times, boys, I tell you, shore."
